

LEAVING A LEGACY/GIFT

It is assumed by many that only rich people can leave a legacy to a charity but in fact anyone can do so if they express their wishes.

It is a known fact that without gifts left in wills by people many charities would cease to exist.

A charitable legacy to a good cause is the foundation in the continuation of the excellent work it does.

Ipswich Mencap is a local voluntary registered charity supporting people with learning disabilities by offering respite care, running social clubs, offering advice and support to both parents and siblings as well as talks at local clubs and groups to raise awareness of people's needs.

Even in today's climate people with learning disabilities still face many challenges including isolation, loneliness, hate crime and poor healthcare.

Leaving a gift in your will and telling your family of your wishes can help us to create a better future and continue the support to all those with a learning disabilities.

If you would like to know more about Ipswich Mencap and how you can leave a gift or what the gift would be used for then please feel free to contact us.
